

Chemicals common on trains here

by JOE SWICKARD

There is no way of knowing how many trains carrying potentially hazardous, toxic or dangerous chemicals travel through the highly-populated Northwest suburbs everyday, railroad officials admit.

Almost anything you can name that moves by rail moves along the Wisconsin branch of the Chicago and North Western Ry. that cuts a swath through the area, a railroad spokesman said. The same is true with the Soo Line and the Milwaukee Road railroads.

Anhydrous ammonia, the same substance that sent almost 1,000 Glen Ellyn residents fleeing from their homes when two trains derailed Sunday, is "almost as common as water" in Illinois, said Michael Benedetto, the Illinois Attorney General's head of environmental control in the northern district.

HE SAID BETWEEN 300 and 1,000 chemicals can be called potentially hazardous depending upon which list you refer to.

A train derailment and a subsequent leak would be a "very bad situation," said Arlington Heights Asst. Village Mgr. Frank Charlton.

"Those cars going down an embankment and into automobiles and houses — well, that's not a happy prospect," said Charlton, who is presently updating Arlington Heights' emergency disaster plans.

In Arlington Heights alone, about 36,000 persons live within one mile of the North Western tracks. A derailment of a car with hazardous materials at Arlington Heights Road could force the evacuation of the area from Central Road to Euclid Avenue and from Wilke Road to Windsor Drive.

A SIMILAR derailment in Palatine would mean that "about 25 per cent of the town" would have to be moved from their homes, Village Pres. Wendell Jones said.

The chances of such a disaster are slim. It has been several years since the last major derailment on the Wisconsin branch and the road bed is rated for speeds up to 60 m.p.h., the North Western spokesman said.

However, he said that the Glen Ellyn accident, still under investigation, occurred on rails with an equal rating.

Some measures to lessen the chances of failure include a daily inspection of the tracks. The railroad cars used to move the chemicals are "constantly inspected," he said.

BUT NORTH WESTERN engineers receive no special instructions when their trains are carrying those cargoes, nor are towns along the right-of-

Doctor indicted for dispensing drugs illegally

by BILL HILL

An Arlington Heights doctor Monday was indicted by a Cook County Grand Jury for illegally dispensing drugs.

Three separate indictments were returned against Dr. Hayward W. Foy, 76, who has practiced in Arlington Heights for 14 years.

Foy was indicted on 74 counts for drug sales allegedly made to three agents of the Illinois Bureau of Investigation, said State's Atty. Bernard Carey.

FOY APPEARED before the grand jury last week. He told The Herald Monday he did not say anything to the jury on the advice of his lawyer, John Clarke of Arlington Heights.

Foy, who practices at 203 S. Arlington Heights Rd., denied all charges made against him.

He is charged in the three indictments with 37 counts of illegal delivery of a controlled substance and with 37 violations of the state's controlled substance act, Carey said.

Carey said under Illinois law, "Drugs are not sold but are delivered."

THERE WERE three indictments because three undercover agents from the FBI were involved in the investigation and allegedly were issued stimulants and depressants by Foy, Carey said.

Foy has been under investigation for about one year, Carey said. "It was a cooperative effort between the FBI and the state's attorney's contraband control unit," he said.

The alleged sales occurred between June 5, 1975, and May 4, Carey said.

The indictments issued Monday are the culmination of the investigation of Foy, but other suburban doctors still are being investigated, according to Carey.

"AT LEAST ONE" public informant was used in the investigation of Foy, Carey said. He refused to elaborate.

Foy said Monday the indictments surprised him.

"We have a good practice here — not what they're talking about. I'm going to see what I can do to get out of this," Foy said.

A spokesman for the Illinois Dept.

of Registration and Education said Monday no action will be taken in regard to Dr. Foy by that department "until after he is proven guilty or innocent."

Officials at Northlake Community Hospital, where Dr. Foy is affiliated, were unaware of the indictments against Dr. Foy and therefore refused to say whether he would lose any privileges at the hospital.

4 defend selves for withholding unit district data

Four Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 officials and a Centex Industrial Park businessman Monday night refuted charges of wrongdoing made against them by a Dist. 59 Board member in regard to the unit district movement. More than 175 persons attended the meeting.

Board members Judith Zanca, Emil Bahnmaier, Supt. Roger Bardwell, Leah Cummins, public relations director, responded to charges made by Paul Kucharski that they had misinformed the board and withheld information on the unit district movement.

Timothy Frisby, director of the Elk Grove Assn. of Industry and Commerce, also responded to the charge that a deal had been made between Dist. 59 officials and Centex businessmen to get the business community's support for last fall's tax rate referendum in exchange for a unit district study.

FRISBY AND Mrs. Cummins also asked Kucharski for a full retraction of charges and an apology for the statement.

"I am not here tonight to answer Mr. Kucharski's charges that a deal was made," Frisby said. "I do not wish to dignify such an absurd allegation. Mr. Kucharski, there are no facts to support your allegation."

"There was no deal," said Mrs.

Ford, Brown face big tests today in Maryland, Mich.

by United Press International

Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., a contingent away from his California power base, tests his Democratic presidential hopes for the first time Tuesday in Maryland. Back home in Michigan, President Ford is trying to get his campaign off the ground again.

The two primaries, the 19th and 20th since New Hampshire began it all on Feb. 24, are crucial to both the young governor and the President. The primaries shape up this way:

• Michigan — Ford and Ronald Reagan compete for 84 Republican delegates that are selected proportionally to popular vote. Jimmy Carter's main opposition for 133 Democratic delegates comes Morris Udall, who has concentrated on the state. Two million persons, who can "cross over," were expected to vote.

• Maryland — Forty-three GOP delegates are at stake on a statewide proportional basis. Brown hopes to head off Carter in popular votes but has only one pledged delegate running among the 53 at stake on a separate ballot. Turnout is expected to be 50 per cent for the Democrats, 25 per cent for the Republicans.

Ford, especially, is in a "must win" situation. Reagan has defeated the President in five of the six Republican primaries since May 1 and Ford now trails the former California governor in committed delegates, 495 to 357. There are 337 uncommitted Republican delegates, with 1,130 needed (Continued on Page 3)

Emmy winners

Mary Tyler Moore named outstanding actress; her television program takes four other awards

by VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Mary Tyler Moore and her weekly comedy series won five Emmys at the 28th annual television academy awards Monday night to top all other shows for the 1975-76 season.

Miss Moore, who was also hostess for the 2½-hour presentation ceremonies, won for best performance by an actress in a comedy series. Her supporting players, Betty White and Ted Knight, won Emmys in their categories along with awards for best writing and best direction.

The prestigious Emmy for best drama or comedy special of the year went to "Eleanor and Franklin," a drama of the Roosevelts.

Actor Anthony Hopkins won the Emmy as outstanding lead actor in a special for his performance as Bruno Richard Hauptmann in "The Lindbergh Kidnapping Case." Susan Clark was voted best actress in a special for her portrayal of "Babe" Didrikson Zaharias in "Babe."

FOLLOWING THE Mary Tyler Moore Show for most Emmys of the year were four for "Eleanor and Franklin" and three for "Rich Man, Poor Man."

It was a surprising distribution of awards, with "Rich Man, Poor Man" having garnered 23 nominations but winning only three.

ABC led the networks with 17 awards, followed by CBS, 15, and NBC, 11. The Public Broadcasting System won six awards.

For Miss Moore, it was her fifth Emmy. She had won twice previously for her performance as a Minneapolis, Minn., television producer in "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," and two previous wins as the leading lady in the old "Dick Van Dyke Show."

The winning actors were Jack Albertson, for best performance in a comedy series ("Chico and the Man"); Peter Falk, outstanding performance in a dramatic series ("Columbo"); Hal Holbrook, best actor in a limited series ("Sandburg's Lincoln"); Ed Asner, best actor for a single performance in a series ("Rich Man, Poor Man").

IN ADDITION to Miss Moore, the best actress winners were Michael Learned, best actress in a drama series ("The Waltons"); Rosemary Harris, best actress in a limited series ("Notorious Woman"); Miss Clark, best actress in a drama special ("Babe"); Kathryn Walker, best actress single appearance in a drama ("The Adams Chronicles").

Mistress and master of ceremonies were Mary Tyler Moore and John Denver. Presenters participating in the awards show were such current series stars as Alan Alda, Robert Blake, Carol Burnett, Valerie Harper, Angie Dickinson, Richard Thomas and Redd Foxx.

Most of the presenters were also nominated in the various acting categories. Altogether 161 individuals were nominated.

On Saturday, the television academy's creative arts awards were presented at a banquet emceed by Mike Connors. ABC won 13 trophies, CBS, 9, PBS, 5, and NBC, 4.

"Eleanor and Franklin" Emmys included best art direction, set decoration, costume design, makeup and film editing.

"Rich Man, Poor Man," a 12-hour, eight-episode saga of Irwin Shaw's novel, won nominations for best limited series and for performers Nick Nolte, Peter Strauss, Susan Blakely and Edward Asner.

Arlington doctor named in drug rap

Dr. Hayward W. Foy, 76, an Arlington Heights doctor for 14 years, was indicted by a Cook County Grand Jury Monday for illegally dispensing drugs. Community bank to close

A community office of the First National Bank of Chicago located in Arlington Heights will be closed. The bank agreed to close its community offices as part of a settlement in a suit brought by the Independent Community Banks in Illinois, an organization of 246 banks throughout the state. The Arlington Heights office was opened in April along with four other suburban offices and five Chicago-based offices.

Harper workers in strike vote

Custodians and maintenance workers at Harper College in Palatine voted unanimously Saturday to strike if an impasse is reached in salary negotiations with the college. Members of the college's service employees union voted to strike because of "union-busting tactics" by the college, and dissatisfaction with the college's salary offer, said union representative M. E. Lore. Lore said Wilfred Von Mayr, Harper personnel director, conducted individual bargaining sessions with members of the custodians' negotiating team and offered jobs to outsiders without posting notice of the openings for college employees to see. Von Mayr said Monday he never bargained individually with any custodians or maintenance men and the bidding procedure for job openings was never circumvented, as the union charged. Lore also said the strike vote is a form of protest against the college and it does not mean there will be a strike by the service workers. Lore said the union will continue negotiations.

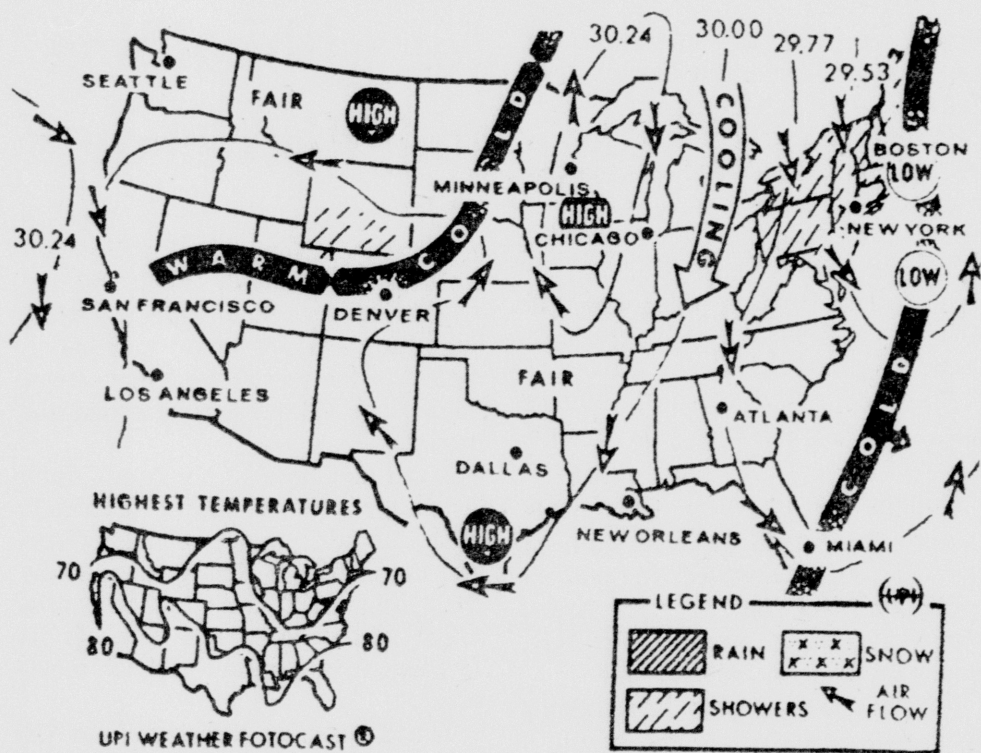

Firefighters seek union OK

Wheeling firefighters are joining village police in seeking union recognition for wage and salary negotiations. Tim Doyle, Charles Conway and Michael Proebstle, all firefighters and members of the employees wage and salary committee, said in a statement Monday that members of the Wheeling Fire Dept. agree with police "that the most important item for discussion with village management is recognition of a bargaining agent." Doyle said a majority of the department's 16 members support the statement.

RTA attorney funds run out

Attorneys for the Regional Transportation Authority will have to "donate time" starting today because the RTA's funds for professional and technical services have run out. Last Thursday, suburban RTA members voted down a measure to transfer $185,000 from an account for wages and fringe benefits to the one which pays for legal and auditing costs. "Whatever legal services we'll require will have to be put in abeyance," the spokesman said. But he said purchase-of-service negotiations with two commuter railroads, The Chicago and North Western, and the Rock Island Line, would probably continue.

Shea urges look at conflict of interest charges

by STEVE BROWN
SPRINGFIELD — House Majority Leader Gerald Shea, D-Riverside, said Monday he welcomes a full investigation into the conflict of interest charges leveled against him by State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights. It was the first time Shea said he wants a full hearing on the matter.

In an interview with The Herald, Shea said he deserves an opportunity to explain his side of the charges.

"I also think that my colleagues have the right to have a full hearing on this resolution," Shea said.

Schlickman asked the Illinois House on May 3 to reprimand Shea because he introduced a package of medical malpractice legislation after being paid as an attorney for the Illinois State Medical Society.

SHEA ALSO appeared on behalf of the group at a meeting with Illinois Dept. of Insurance officials regarding malpractice insurance problems in Illinois.

Schlickman told The Herald Monday that he plans to expand his resolution today to include new information concerning Shea's legal work for Illinois Dental Services Inc., (IDS) an agency established in 1965 to create pre-paid dental care plans in Illinois.

Shea said he did meet with officials of both the state insurance department on malpractice problems and the Illinois Dept. of Public Aid concerning IDS.

"There is nothing wrong with that. The law says that members of the General Assembly should arrange to have another party represent their interest before state agencies whenever feasible. But I am a one man operation. If I did not do it, it would not get done," Shea said.

HE SAID ILLINOIS law, which sets out specific prohibitions regarding legislators' actions before state agencies, does not ban the activities he has undertaken.

The Herald reported Friday that Shea listed on his state ethics statement that he received more than $5,000 from both the ISMS and IDS.

However, Shea said he was not required to list the groups because he did not receive that much income from either organization. State law requires legislators to disclose any income received in excess of $5,000 for outside legal work or other types of professional services.

"I put it on there because I didn't want anyone pointing fingers," he added. Shea consistently has denied that any conflict of interest exists in this situation.

"Look, I am a lame-duck legislator. How much power can I have?" he said. Shea announced in December he would not seek reelection. In his position of house majority leader, Shea generally is considered one of the most powerful and influential members of the Illinois House.

Shea said he has talked to several persons regarding the hiring of an attorney to represent him at hearings on Schlickman's charges. The charges have been referred to the Illinois House Executive Committee for review.

Big tests today for Ford, Brown

for the nomination.

A repudiation in his home state would be a crushing blow to Ford's hopes of winning in his own right the presidency that he assumed with the resignation of Richard Nixon 22 months ago.

It also would leave the President with precious few opportunities to regain the initiative as the primary parade moves into the mountain and Pacific Coast states where Reagan is believed to be strong.

Michigan was turned into a Ford-Reagan battleground by Reagan wins in Texas and Indiana, where political analysts believed Democrats who supported George Wallace in past years "crossed over" to vote for Reagan on the GOP ballot.

The Maryland primary is Brown's first campaign outside of California, where his father was governor a decade ago.

The 38-year-old Californian remained on the sidelines for several months after the start of the primaries and went into Maryland in the path of Carter's seemingly unstoppable drive toward the Democratic nomination.

If Brown can win the Maryland primary, he might not stop Carter, who already has 60% of the required

1,505 delegates needed for the non-nomination.

But in a Democratic landscape littered with candidacies destroyed by the former Georgia governor's string of 13 victories in 18 primaries, a Maryland victory could make Brown the focus of Anti-Carter forces. If he loses, Brown is likely to be regarded as little more than a Western favorite son.

Running behind Carter in the Democratic delegate race are Udall, 210; Henry Jackson, 202; and Wallace, 138. There are 314 uncommitted delegates and 219 pledged to favorite sons and dropout candidates.

Reagan openly wooed Democrats in Michigan as he did in the other states where he won. Ford responded by seeking Democratic votes in Michigan himself and giving the state a large share of his campaign schedule in the last two weeks.

Carter had war on two fronts. Udall, who almost beat him in Wisconsin, dropped everything else to concentrate on Michigan and Brown stumped all over Maryland. Carter popped back and forth but said he already had shown his appeal to all segments of the Democratic party and would not be stopped by "one shot" candidates like Frank Church in Nebraska, Brown in Maryland and Udall in Michigan.

Democratic platform chairman replaced

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Democratic Platform Committee in its first session Monday replaced its beleaguered chairman and named a 15-member panel to draft the party's 1976 policy document.

As a first order of business, the Democrats named Gov. Wendell Anderson of Minnesota as permanent platform chairman, replacing Rhode Island Gov. Philip Noel, who came under fire from civil rights groups for his statements about school busing.

The 153-member platform panel, after protracted debate, then rejected an effort to bar Daniel Patrick Moynihan, former ambassador to the United Nations, from the drafting subcommittee.

It also received a 10-page statement from AFL-CIO President George Meany urging the Democrats to recommit themselves to domestic social programs — particularly the nation's economy which he said is "in danger of another, deeper recession."

Meany was the first of about 100 witnesses scheduled to appear before the committee. But NBC broadcast employees set up a picket line outside the hotel, and Meany refused to cross it.

Noel, who has been temporary chairman of the platform committee for the last six months, drew applause at the session when he said he was stepping down in the interest of party unity.

"I made that decision because unfortunately I have become the center of some controversy regarding a remark I made that, taken out of context and viewed in the harshest light, has caused some controversy to the Democrats," Noel said of his statements about ghetto blacks.

Anderson, taking over, said: "Phil Noel has been extremely direct and forthright and candid and a very refreshing person. He's not perfect, but he's really a tremendous human being."

Strong quake rocks remote Soviet area

A MAJOR earthquake Monday jolted large areas of Soviet Central Asia near the Afghanistan border.

MOSCOW (UPI) — An earthquake rumbled across remote Soviet Central Asia Monday in a series of shocks 10 times as severe as the jolts that devastated northeast Italy. Soviet television reported "marked" damage to at least one town.

Seismologist Nikolai Shebalin of the Soviet Academy of Sciences said the quake hit nine on the 12-point Soviet scale of intensity — a magnitude ranked as "devastating." Experts in the United States measured the quake at 7.2 on the open-ended Richter scale.

But it appeared to be a relatively shallow quake in one of the Soviet Union's most deserted spots. The ancient cities of Bukhara, Samarkand and Tashkent escaped its force.

"In Gazli, the earthquake caused marked material damage," Shebalin said in the television report, without going into details. Gazli is a small town northwest of Bukhara, to which it is linked by a dirt road.

"There are no casualties here and no destruction. Communications are operating normally," a senior city official in Bukhara said in a telephone interview. Bukhara was within 100 miles of the quake's epicenter, 240 miles west of Tashkent.

The official Tass news agency reported "prompt measures . . . to give relief to quake victims," but it gave no figures for casualties or persons who lost their homes.

Shebalin said the earthquake took place along a fault running across the bed of the Amu-Darya river, in the same area as a lesser shock April 8.

"We do not expect any further strong earthquakes in the region, but aftershocks will be felt for some time," he said.

Soviet officials, always reluctant to give details about disasters, made no report on deaths or injuries in the sparsely populated desert region. Experts said Tass reports of "material damage" meant a high probability of death and injury.

In other earthquake reports:

- A new tremor sent patients fleeing from a hospital in one part of quake-devastated northeastern Italy and caused panic in other areas. Reports mentioned no casualties or damage although seismologists said the shock measured 4.2 on the Richter scale — strong enough to cause some damage.

- In Peru, officials reported five persons died in a landslide 10 hours after an earthquake Sunday in the Andean mountain town of Totos, 180 miles southeast of Lima.

The quake struck the Soviet republic of Uzbekistan, nearly 2,000 miles southeast of Moscow. The area, mainly desert, includes the ancient towns of Samarkand and Bukhara and it formed the western edge of the empire of the conqueror Genghis Khan.

Tashkent is the capital of Uzbekistan, which is the size of California and Maryland combined. Tashkent was nearly destroyed by an earthquake on April 26, 1966, although loss of life was low.

Tass said Samarkand, Bukhara, Gazli and Tamdybulak, all from 200 to 240 miles west of Tashkent, were the populated areas most affected. The heaviest shock was at a spot 100 miles north of Bukhara.

FTC begins probe of tobacco ads

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Reporting that Americans smoked a record 603 billion cigarettes last year, the Federal Trade Commission Monday announced an investigation to determine whether the tobacco industry is pushing the habit with unfair advertising.

In its annual cigarette report to Congress the agency also recommended stronger warnings on cigarette packs and ads — perhaps to say smoking "may result in your death."

There has been a "sharp increase" in cigarette consumption by women and young people, the report said, because of "changing mores."

The result was that last year Americans puffed their way through a projected 601 billion to 603 billion cigarettes — up more than 3 billion from 594.5 billion in 1974.

That compares to 584.7 billion in 1973, 561.7 billion in 1972 and 547.2 billion in 1971 — the year radio and television cigarette commercials were banned.

The FTC told Congress that "in order to determine whether there may be deception and unfairness" in cigarette ads it has started an industry-wide investigation.

Among other things, it said, the probe will attempt to learn what the industry itself knows about the impact of its ads on "consumers and potential consumers."

The commission did not elaborate on the investigation, but elsewhere in the report it said that some ads appear to "encourage consumers to ignore the grave health consequences of smoking. A recent example of this sort of advertisement is an advertisement for 'Salem' in which a smoker asserts, 'I don't analyze smoking. I enjoy it.'"

Ads for "True" cigarettes appear to "equate the consequences of switching to True with the beneficial consequences of 'quitting,'" the report added.

Because of changing values, the promotion of "low" tar and nicotine cigarettes and the use of less tobacco per cigarette — so it will draw erosion through filters — it is difficult to assess the impact of the health warnings which have been printed on cigarette packs since 1970.

The agency told Congress it should consider changing the law to strengthen the written warning either to spell out the various types of diseases — such as cancer, heart disease and bronchitis — or simply revise the label to say:

"Warning: Cigarette Smoking is a Major Health Hazard and May Result in Your Death."

Libya supports leftists in Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Leftists got Libya's backing Monday for their rejection of Syrian peace efforts and bloody fighting redoubled in Beirut and the eastern mountains.

Heavy shelling and intense sniper fire throughout the capital killed 179 persons and wounded 340 Monday, adding more carnage to the 750 casualties left by the weekend's "Bloody Sunday."

Peacekeeping troops from the Syrian-backed Palestine Liberation Army closed the main road across the "Green Line" separating eastern and western Beirut because heavy fire from snipers' rifles made the short run through no-man's land impossible.

In the mountains, leftists and rightists battled on several fronts with tanks, armored vehicles and heavy artillery.

The house-to-house fight for the capital's port and commercial center resumed, but reporters who braved machinegun fire to inspect the front said no territory had changed hands.

Libyan Prime Minister Maj. Abdel Salam Jalloud arrived on an announced visit from Damascus Monday and held a series of urgent meetings with leftist and Palestinian leaders.

Socialist chief Kamal Jumblatt said Jalloud assured the leftists of Libya's full support in their demands for a Syrian withdrawal from Lebanon.

"Premier Jalloud told us that his country is with the nationalist (Leftist) movement and whatever stand is taken by the movement," Jumblatt said.

Jumblatt said Jalloud told him, "If the nationalist movement chooses peace, we are with you, and if it chooses war, we are with you, too."

Jumblatt's leftist alliance, encouraged by the new support, issued another call for an end to Syria's military intervention, but they also said they were ready to attend a round-table conference with the country's other factions — the only remaining hope for a political solution to the 13-month civil war.

Most of the 750 persons killed or wounded in the Sunday fighting were noncombatants caught in the middle when rival factions traded more than 1,000 rockets, mortar bombs and artillery shells.

Ten children died when an artillery shell crashed into their classroom in a Palestinian refugee camp near Beirut, and other citizens were killed in the streets or in their homes during the indiscriminate terror bombardment.

Court upholds Ehrlichman conviction

- A U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington Monday upheld the conviction of former White House aide John D. Ehrlichman for his role in the break-in of Daniel Ellsberg's doctor's office in California in 1971. The same court also affirmed J. Gordon Liddy's conviction in the same break-in, but reversed the convictions of White House "plumbers" Bernard L. Barker and Eugenio R. Martinez. The break-in was at the office of Dr. Lewis J. Fielding, who treated Ellsberg, who was largely responsible for publication of the "Pentagon Papers."

- Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said Monday he found the book about Richard Nixon's final days as president "essentially accurate," except in certain aspects which he declined to discuss. He was interviewed on the NBC-TV Today Show. Kissinger refused to comment on a section

Rise in subsidized health care costs seen

The costs of subsidized health care for elderly and needy persons will increase by 14 per cent a year through the 1970s unless some restraint is administered in the programs, the head of the Congressional Budget Office said Monday. "Even without new or expanded programs, rising health care costs will pose significant problems for both family and government budgets," congressional budget director Alice Rivlin told Congress. She said the one year growth in federal Medicare spending alone will exceed the amounts budgeted for all Public Health Service programs.

Ford tells plans for FEC panel

President Ford said Monday he would nominate five original members and a former Republican ally in Congress to revive the Federal Election Commission and resume campaign subsidies for presidential candidates. Ford said he was choosing William Springer, formerly a GOP congressman from Illinois to replace Thomas Curtis on the FEC. The new commission will choose its own chairman. Those to be renominated are: Joan D. Aikens, Thomas E. Harris, Neil Staebler, Vernon W. Thomson, and Robert O. Tiernan.

Howard Hughes wills now total 13

Five more purported Howard Hughes wills surfaced Monday, bringing the known total of such documents to 13. In another development in the battle shaping up over the late reclusive's $2.5 billion estate, handwriting expert Lyndal Shaneyfelt of Washington, D.C., asked Probate Judge Keith Hayes for permission to examine the first of the purported wills which was found at Mormon church headquarters in Salt Lake City April 27.

Israeli troops kill 2nd Arab youth

Israeli troops killed one Arab youth and arrested dozens more Monday in putting down rock-throwing demonstrations that swept the occupied West Bank of Jordan. The slain youth was the second teen-ager shot to death in two days of protests. Arab crowds clashed with troops in Jerusalem, Kalandria, Ramallah, Nablus, Talkarm and refugee camps outside Nablus and Jenin.

Spanish government bans Franco rally

The Spanish government Monday banned a right-wing memorial rally to the late Generalissimo Francisco Franco which had been expected to draw nearly 200,000 persons protesting political reforms. The Interior Ministry said the rally was forbidden because of the risk of violence. An announcement said the memory of Franco, whose "figure is part of the spiritual treasure of our people," should not be invoked in a rallying cry for street demonstrations.

They ensure safe O'Hare landings

by JOHN MAES

Orville Bowers is generally a quiet man, but in the past 17 years he has been partly responsible for keeping awake many light sleepers in the Northwest suburbs.

Bowers, and coworkers Bob Barnes and Kenneth McKim, are a Federal Aviation Administration flight check crew who test the landing equipment on airport runways by flying a specially equipped Sabre Liner jet around O'Hare Airport in the middle of the night. Their work helps ensure the safety of the nearly 700,000 aircraft takeoffs and landings each year at O'Hare.

"It's my whole purpose in life," says Bowers, a 45-year-old, sideburned technician, as he describes the job by which he makes sure the air-port's Instrument Landing Systems are working with pinpoint accuracy.

Today

BOWERS, ALONG with pilots McKim and Barnes, operates out of an agency office in Battle Creek, Mich. One of their responsibilities is the periodic inspection of landing systems in every commercial, private and military airport in Illinois, Michigan, Indiana, Wisconsin and Ohio.

"It's not monotonous," Bowers says. "You're someplace different every day."

Bowers, in his 17 years as a flight checker, has seen plenty of O'Hare and won't even venture a guess as to how many times he's inspected its runway systems.

He says there are more ILS systems at O'Hare than are in operation at all the Indiana airports combined.

Bowers was running a flight check at O'Hare one day in 1959 when the then-new Boeing 707 landed there for the first time. "Boy, did that thing look big," he remembers. "We had to land just to take a look at it."

BUT UNLIKE his fellow crew members, both experienced aviators, Bowers does not fly. He laments but again with a laugh. "I have about 10,000 hours in the back of the plane and very little in front."

Only recently, the FAA began using the Rockwell International sabre liners, each costing $2.5 million, to run flight checks. The jets replace their fleet of the trusty but outmoded propeller-driven DC-3s.

The winged "Gooney Birds," as the DC-3s were once known, are being phased out in favor of the faster sabres, referred to by McKim as, "the latest state of the art" of aviation.

Each system along the crew's five-state route must be checked every 60

Orville Bowers, FAA technician at the console.

or 120 days, depending on its "reliability factor."

Bowers explains that each of O'Hare's runways is equipped with such a system, basically a device that emits signals to approaching planes and helps guide them to a safe landing.

THE MONITOR is housed in a little building, or "facility," along each runway.

At any other airport, Bowers says, the operation could be run during the day. But consistent with its tag as the world's busiest airport, the volume of air traffic at O'Hare won't allow for daytime flight checks.

And, as if in deference to airport area residents whose sleep occasionally may be disturbed, Bowers says, "We try not to get too low over residential areas."

While the pilots maneuver the sabre in a "racetrack pattern," Bowers, seated at a console of meters, gauges, dials and even a navigational computer, goes about the routine of seeing whether the landing signal is functioning properly.

The device is equipped with an alarm that will automatically shut the system off if something goes wrong, but checking it from the air is an added safety measure, Bowers says.

THE SYSTEM is tested repeatedly during the run, although Barnes says, "generally, it's a very rare occasion that we find anything wrong at all."

The final, in-flight test is to check its "usability," with three nonlanding approaches to the runway before setting down and running still further tests of the monitor while on the ground.

A brief rest period allows the crew time to grab a little breakfast. But then, the operation begins all over again on another runway — where as before, it's likely to be just another routine check.

But that means everything is in working order, which suits Bowers and the FAA crew just fine.

The approach.

Probing ways parents can have education say-so

Martin Buskin believes parents have power. He believes:

- They can and should have a say in what happens to their children in the local schools.

- They can and should have a knowledge of curriculum innovations, testing procedures, guidance departments, the quality of teachers, administrators and boards of education.

He also spells out what power parents have and how it can be put to use in a candid and thought-provoking book, "Parent Power," published by Walker and Co., New York, N.Y.

Buskin is education editor of "Newsday," a newspaper in Long Island, N.Y. His book offers parents tremendous insights into the world of education and how to cope while the kids progress through the school system.

The phone here rings frequently and often there is a parent on the other end asking about the "quality of education" in a certain district or particular school. "What is the best high school in the area?" "How good are the test scores in my district?" "How can I get my child out of so-and-so's class?"

BUSKIN HAS some solid answers.

If you're moving and care about the "quality" of the school system, check it out, he advises. Go to the school your child will attend and ask about class size, the teachers turnover rate, how teachers are selected and from where, how many administrators are on staff, what student services and guidance programs are available, what type of educational program is offered. Take a tour of the building. Sit in a classroom for a half hour and see first-hand the methods of teaching that are used.

Then look at the big picture. Buskin suggests new parents attend a school board meeting.

Buskin says you can get a pretty good idea of how a board operates and what type of district it is by attending a board meeting.

ONCE YOU'RE in a district, you have the right and responsibility as a parent to understand what is being taught and how it is being taught. Buskin provides explanations on alternative schools within a school, contract learning, individualized instruction, modular scheduling, nongraded schools, open classrooms that take you beyond the pat educator rhetoric.

Buskin also maintains, "Citizen groups in suburbia have power. They can change a curriculum, alter or stop school building programs, revise the composition of school boards, have teachers and administrators fired or hired and, in general, affect the entire atmosphere of a school system."

The key to that power, however, is in the organization. Parents can work through what Buskin calls "the establishment groups appointed by the school board," the PTA or similar permanent organizations, or the "spontaneous groups" that form in response to specific issues.

THE SPONTANEOUS GROUP "gets the most newspaper space, causes the most upheaval in a community, and usually brings down the wrath of the central administration and the school board," Buskin says, and offers a formula to not only make these groups effective but efficient.

The book is aimed at suburban parents and the author adds, "It is a book for parents who question what is happening to their sons and daughters each day in that strange, complex institution called school. It is a book for parents who realize that much of their children's maturity and success depend not only on their love and understanding, but on their awareness."

I read it twice — once as education editor and once as a suburban parent of two. I highly recommend it.

Daughter charged with shooting her family

by JOHN MAES

Patricia Ann Columbo, 19, was formally charged in three complaints Monday with shooting to death her parents and brother in their Elk Grove Village Home.

A fourth complaint charges her with conspiring with Lanyon Mitchell, 24, of west suburban Villa Park to carry out the scheme by providing him with family photos, detailed floor plans of the home and schedules of their activities.

Assistant State's Atty. Terry Sullivan, however, refused to say if evidence suggests Miss Columbo was in the home the night of the triple slayings. The woman has denied to authorities that she committed the murders.

LOOKING DAZED. her hair disheveled and wearing the same salmon colored coat she wore the night of her arrest, Miss Columbo was arraigned Monday morning in the Niles branch of Cook County Circuit Court before Associate Judge Simon S. Porter.

Miss Columbo is charged with murdering her father Frank Columbo, 43, her mother Mary, 40, and her brother, Michael, 13, all of 55 E. Brantwood, Elk Grove Village.

She was arrested Saturday morning at an apartment she shared with her boyfriend Frank DeLuca, 2015 S. Finley Rd., Lombard.

Police found the Columbos May 7, shot, stabbed and beaten to death. They were presumed dead for about three days.

AT THE REQUEST of Richard

Kavitt and Alan Spector, two public defenders appointed to represent Miss Columbo, Judge Porter ordered the woman examined by a court psychiatrist. She also was directed to be taken to Cermak Hospital, adjacent to the Cook County Jail, pending a preliminary hearing June 4 in Niles.

Mitchell, an unemployed former auto salesman who told authorities he backed out of the plot before the murders occurred and DeLuca, are both in "protective custody." Neither has been charged.

Later Tuesday Kavitt and Spector, appearing before Judge James A. Geocar, asked an order be issued prohibiting police and the state's attorney's office from "making public disclosures of any material fact relevant to the prosecution."

They told Judge Geocar authorities have released some information harmful to Miss Columbo's right to an impartial trial, and "causes substantial prejudice to the defense."

GEOCARIS REFUSED to rule on the matter Monday, saying the issue deals with first amendment rights along with freedoms of speech and the press. He gave the prosecution 48 hours before the next court date to respond.

Investigation of the brutal killings turned toward Miss Columbo after authorities learned of a strife-torn relationship between her and her parents. She reportedly was bitter over such things as her father's disapproval of her romance with DeLuca, manager of the Walgreen's Drug Store, 955 Grove Mall, Elk Grove Village.

Outside the court, two of Miss Columbo's former girlfriends, Karyn Mullen and Joanne Dehn, both 15, of Elk Grove Village, said they had seen Miss Columbo shopping in Walgreen's the same day the bodies were found. Miss Columbo appeared to be "herself," and did not appear too nervous or troubled, they said.

She seemed to love her brother and while working at the store, "she would always drop what she was doing and talk to her brother when he came in," the Mullen girl said.

It also was learned during a court recess Monday that Patricia was heir to only $5,000 from her father's will. Charles Whelan, an Arlington Heights attorney representing Columbo's relatives, said Michael was to receive the bulk of his father's estate, valued at more than $100,000.

For youth, senior citizen programs

Human services chief approved

The Arlington Heights Village Board Monday night gave final approval to the hiring of a human services coordinator to direct youth and senior citizen programs in the village.

The job description for the new position was approved by a 6-3 vote.

The position gained tentative approval from the board in April when $20,000 was appropriated in the 1976-77 budget for the coordinator's salary and supportive services.

WITH THE FINAL approval of the job description, the village administration will now begin to advertise the position.

The first-year salary of the coordinator will be between $12,000 and $16,000.

Gregory Ford, village personnel director, said he is hopeful the position will be filled by July.

The coordinator, who will work out of the village health department, will supervise and evaluate existing social service programs as well as develop others, according to the job description.

THE POSITION has been requested by John W. Gianopolos, chairman of the senior citizens commission, for two years and has been a point of continuous controversy.

Trustees Richard Durava, Robert Miller and August Bettman continued to oppose creation of the post Monday night.

"I have opposed this in the past and I still oppose this because no one has done anything to prove to me the need for such a thing," Bettman said.

He called the job description for the post "vague" and said it contained "anything you can think of to help justify the job."

MILLER ALSO questioned whether sufficient justification for the post had been shown.

Cummins, explaining she was out of town when the tax rate was set. "There is no documentary evidence," she said. She said there would have been no endorsement by the business community if an open forum had not been held concerning the referendum where industrial park businessmen spoke.

She said her actions as a member of a committee of 10 residents, which filed the unit district petition with the county, "were done in faithful compliance with the law."

She said, "Perhaps it was a mistake to have this an agenda item of the committee of 10 punishing a newspaper. The committee of 10 thought they wanted to dramatize the need for unbiased reporting," referring to the committee's decision to withhold information from The Herald.

SUPT. ROGER BARDWELL also denied that any deal was made.

He said he also has no responsibility to the committee of 10 because it is "a legally-constituted body." "I was not knowledgeable of the actions of this group, and am not to be held responsible for their actions," he said.

Bahnmaier said the allegations in regard to his withholding tapes taken at the unit district committee's meetings were unjust. He said as secretary of the committee he took the tapes to help him with the minutes.

"The official record of our meetings was our minutes," he said.

Mrs. Zanca and Bahnmaier also said there were no illegal actions on their part as board members and members of the committee of 10.

MRS. ZANCA also said there were no illegal actions in regard to the use of a legal firm by the committee of 10 prior to the firm's being hired by the board. She said she told the firm no commitment could be made or fees charged for advice given before the board hired the firm.

She said the committee of 10 is "a creature of the statutes." "It is responsible only to themselves and the county superintendent for their actions," she said.

Milwaukee—beer aplenty and art and museums...

by JILL BETTNER

The Milwaukee Symphony rehearses in beautiful Uihlein Hall.

"Argo" by Alexander Liberman is part of the Milwaukee Art Center's Bradley Collection.

Good friends, a toast to Milwaukee! The lively city may be most famous as the beer capital of the world, but ahem, there's lots more to cheer about. Here's to the new performing arts center, one of the best zoos in the country, fascinating museums and some of the finest German restaurants anywhere.

Milwaukee is one of those cities with a distinct personality, an intriguing blend of the influences of its hearty German and French settlers for local color and a progressive outlook that keeps the city growing and thriving.

A favorite with families because of its abundance of tourist attractions, Milwaukee offers one-day and weekend outings, a quick two-hour drive from Chicago's Northwest suburbs.

Like many Midwestern cities, Milwaukee got its name from the Indians, who called the area on the west shore of Lake Michigan where the Milwaukee, Menomonee and Kinnickinnic rivers meet, "the gathering of great councils" or "gathering place by the waters."

THE CITY WAS for many years a French trading post and campsite between Chicago and Green Bay and was founded by a Frenchman named Solomon Juneau. Later to settle were the English, large numbers of Germans, Scandinavians, Poles, Dutch, Bohemians and Austrians. By 1846, Milwaukee was a prosperous city and since the opening of the St. Lawrence Seaway has steadily grown to become one of the top industrial centers of the nation.

The rich ethnic heritage of the city has been preserved in one of the most popular exhibits in Milwaukee's Public Museum called "The Streets of Old Milwaukee."

Inside the museum, 800 W. Wells St., a typical turn-of-the-century block has been recreated with shops and stores meticulously restored down to the last detail, including patrons with handlebar mustaches and fine ladies in Gay '90s garb. The shelves of Laab's Drug Store are lined with cobalt bottles, porcelain jars and a collection of patent medicines.

ACROSS THE cedar-block street, there is Kuhn's General Store, and around the corner is Chapman's Millinery Shop with all the latest fashions of the era. Stark's Candy Shop carries the old-time favorites like horehound drops and licorice straps and huge salamis hang in the window of Usinger's Sausage Shop. There are several other stores along with a small home offering a glimpse of family life as it might have been in the period.

Ranked just behind Chicago's Field Museum, Milwaukee's national history collection is the fourth best in the country, featuring a number of experimental exhibits achieved through the use of three-dimensional dioramas (some are open for touching the displays) and varying the texture of the floors and even the temperature of different areas for realistic effect.

Walk through "The Land of the Midnight Sun," for example, and feel the air grow chilly as you pass over the polar ice cap. Look inside a two-story Hopi Indian pueblo as you cross the "sands" of the desert and sense the mystery and intrigue that surround a Guatemalan village market.

THROUGHOUT the museum, animals are displayed in realistic settings and grouped together in the environments they naturally share.

The perfect place to spend a rainy day, the museum is open year-round except on major holidays. Admission is $1 for adults and 25 cents for children. Guided tours for groups are available for a fee of $10 per guide by reservation.

The realism of the Milwaukee Zoo is what makes it, too, a fascinating place to visit and one of the most progressive zoos in the country.

BOTH MEAT EATERS and their prey are shown in barless enclosures that make it seem as though they can roam in complete freedom. Actually, the animals, birds and reptiles are separated by deep moats specially constructed to be unseen by visitors.

Throughout the zoo, animals play and graze in authentic-looking native backdrops that resemble their homes around the world. The "king" of the zoo is Sampson, a 600-pound prize gorilla whose home is the Primate House, where he and the smaller primates can be seen through thick glass instead of bars.

Take a ride around the expansive park on a miniature train or the Zoomobile and stop for lunch at the restaurant, where huge picture windows provide a view of numerous waterfowl in a scenic lagoon.

Although summer may seem the logical time to go to a zoo, the Milwaukee Zoo is open year-round and offers some beautiful winter scenes of the animals outdoors, as well as a number of indoor exhibits. Located at 10001 Blue Mound Rd., the zoo is open in the summer weekdays from 9:30

Fun aplenty in Milwaukee

a.m. to 5:30 p.m. and Sundays and holidays from 9:30 a.m. to 6:50 p.m. During September and October hours are from 9:30 a.m. to 4:50 p.m. daily. From November through February, the zoo is open daily from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Admission is free until 10:30 a.m. each day. After 10:30 a.m., the charges are adults 50 cents and children, 25 cents.

AS THE BEER capital of the world, it's logical that Milwaukee would draw thousands of tourists annually to its breweries. The three largest — Miller, Pabst and Schlitz — all offer free tours, and children are allowed with a parent.

Each brewery provides a 40-minute tour of the plant that ends with an opportunity to sample some of the product. There are souvenir shops and Miller has an interesting collection of German beer containers displayed in the "Caves Museum." Schlitz is the only brewery that conducts Saturday tours during the winter season.

One of the newest of Milwaukee's many attractions in the Milwaukee Performing Arts Center, 929 N. Water St. The home of the Milwaukee Symphony Orchestra and the Milwaukee Ballet Company, the center also stages frequent Broadway musicals, avant-garde plays, jazz concerts, operas and film festivals.

WINNER OF several architectural design awards, the center is a massive structure of Roman travertine marble with three separate theatres, rehearsal halls, a restaurant, ballroom, spacious promenade and administrative offices for the relatively young staff, most of whom are in their early 30s.

Upcoming attractions in the center's elegant Uihlein Hall, that seats over 2,000, include a number of plays with top stars such as Virginia Capers and the entire Broadway cast of the musical hit "Raisin"; outdoor jazz festivals; symphony concerts. An "Alewives Festival" in July will feature numerous artisans who will sell their works and give demonstrations in such arts as spinning, weaving, and pottery.

A complete schedule of the center's summer events may be obtained by writing the Performing Arts Center, 929 N. Water St., Milwaukee, Wis. 53202.

ANOTHER IMPRESSIVE cultural addition to the city is the lakefront Milwaukee Art Center, also a distinctive piece of architecture. Designed by internationally-known architect, Eero Saarinen, the building is a simple, massive concrete structure with four levels housing several excellent collections.

The art center features paintings, sculpture, graphics and decorative arts from ancient times to modern works. There is an outstanding American collection and an exhibit of Haitian art that is considered one of the best, if not the best, in the country.

Special exhibits frequently are shown at the art center in addition to the works included in the permanent collections.

A good time to take in some of Milwaukee's sights is during the city's annual Summerfest celebration. A lakefront park will become a rollicking amusement park and entertainment center for the event this year from June 30 to July 11.

The Milwaukee Convention and Visitors Bureau is located in the heart of the city at 823 N. Broadway. Stop in while you're in town or write for a free brochure of "Milwaukee Fun-tours." The Wisconsin Official Information Center also maintains a Chicago office at 205 N. Michigan Ave.

German Cuisine: food that made Milwaukee famous

Great restaurants are always a part of the fun of visiting Milwaukee. The city's varied ethnic heritage is represented by numerous good eating spots.

Definitely the place to go for authentic German-American fare, Milwaukee offers two top-notch restaurants in Karl Ratzch's and Mader's.

Ratzch's, downtown at 320 E. Mason St., has been a family-owned Milwaukee institution since 1904. Its beautiful old-world atmosphere including a magnificent collection of rare beer steins, glassware and antiques is matched by the excellence of the food.

TRY MAMA RATZCH'S famous German sauerbraten with ginger snap gravy and sample the homemade sour rye rolls. Numerous other specialties of the house include roast duckling with red cabbage and wild rice, Vienna-style wiener schnitzel and beef rouladen, round steak rolled and stuffed.

Stuffed is what you'll probably be after the main course, but try to save room for one of Ratzch's delicious desserts such as the Bavarian mocha torte, Viennese apple streudel or a strawberry schaum torte.

The average price for lunch is about $4. It goes up to at least $6 for dinner, but at night there's entertainment by a Viennese string ensemble. The group also plays for the enjoyment of diners on Sunday afternoons.

Mader's is the other most popular choice in Milwaukee for German-American food, offering huge portions at prices that are about comparable to Ratzch's.

SAUERBRATEN AND wiener schnitzel are two specialties of the house at Mader's, too, along with spanferkel, a pork dish. The restaurant is located at 1037 N. 3rd St.

John Ernst Cafe is another German-American spot that serves good food, although the prices are slightly higher. The care, at 600 E. Ogden Ave., has a bar and an organist who entertains nightly.

Although the accent is decidedly German among Milwaukee's restaurants, excellent French, Greek, Italian, Austrian and Serbian cuisine also are available.

Dinner for two including a bottle of wine at the Old Town, a Serbian gourmet restaurant, at 5th Street and Lincoln Avenue, is usually under $12. The atmosphere is enhanced by a trio that performs authentic Serbian folk music.

Of the seafood restaurants in the city, one of the most interesting is Pieces of Eight, 500 N. Harbor Dr. The Polynesian-style restaurant is perched at the end of a slender finger of land that juts out into Lake Michigan. Huge picture windows offer panoramic views of the water and the lakefront. Dinner entrees average about $7.

Milwaukee's northern lakefront is one of the most scenic areas of the city.

Philadelphia center claims 'biggest movie ever made'

by DAVID DUGAS
PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The biggest movie ever made has no stars and runs only 48 minutes.
It's not "Gone With the Wind," "The Sound of Music" or "Jaws."
But it is big.

It is a spectacular called "American Years" that had its world premiere April 30 in the only theater that is ever likely to show it, a specially-constructed auditorium in the new $11.5 million, Living History Center built in Philadelphia to commemorate the U.S. Bicentennial.

Although the theater seats only 875, its screen is 93 feet wide and 70 feet high. Its inventors say it is the biggest ever made.

Is big better?
A NUMBER OF processes developed in the 1950s offered huge wide screens. There was the original Cinemascope, filmed and projected with three overlapping frames. Cinema-Scope and VistaVision offered superwide movies using single cameras with special lenses and frame dimensions.

Expositions and amusement parks have offered 360-degree motion pictures filmed with numerous cameras. Yet most of the systems billed as revolutionary 20 years ago have all but vanished from regular movie houses leaving behind only the now-conventional wide screen and stereophonic sound.

Now there is Imax, with a picture bigger than any previously seen and,

Mid-week review

says inventor Graeme Ferguson, it is better.

"Size is not primary as far as we're concerned," says the 46-year-old Canadian who conceived the process and named it for "maximum image." He claims it provide a picture "five times" as clear and steady as any previous system.

"IT'S THE FIDELITY of image and relation of the audience to the screen that counts," Ferguson says.

"There is none of the graininess you see with conventional film. The field is so enormous that the audience isn't aware of the picture's edges. People feel they're in the picture and part of the action."

Ferguson had made various experimental films when the idea for Imax came to him in 1967. He and fellow Canadian filmmaker Roman Kroitor, his brother-in-law, were talking about a film Kroitor had made for Montreal's Expo '67, "Labyrinth."

The two men set about sketching a system that would film and project movies with the equivalent of nine normal 35mm frames. To design it, they went to another friend, Bill Shaw, a former manufacturing engineer for the Ford Motor Company who had turned to designing bicycles, skates and other sports equipment.

WITH FURTHER help from an Australian inventor, Ron Jones, who had devised a unique film movement method, and Jan Jacobsen, a Norwegian camera designer, Imax went into business.

The first film, "Tiger Child," had its premiere at Osaka's Expo '70. That 15-minute experiment had led four years later to a 23-minute movie, "Man Belongs to the Earth," which Ferguson and Kroitor produced for Expo '74 in Spokane, Wash.

On July 4 an Imax theatre, somewhat smaller than Philadelphia's, will open at the Smithsonian's new National Air and Space Museum in Washington, D.C., with a 26-minute film entitled "To Fly."

Like "American Years," it was directed by American documentary film-maker Francis Thompson, whose Oscar-winning "To Be Alive" was a major attraction at the 1964-65 New York World's Fair.

High-card reading helps

It required no real cerebation on the part of South to know that East would show up with practically all the missing high cards. Therefore, after winning the spade lead in dummy, South promptly cashed dummy's ace of trumps.

East's king dropped and South stopped to consider how to go about taking care of West's four trumps. He finally decided that he had to leave the trumps entirely alone until after developing some minor suit tricks.

He led a club and continued the suit after East ducked. East took the second club and played his queen of spades.

Back in dummy, South led a low diamond. East rose with the king and led a third spade which South ruffed with the nine.

West did the best he could. He discarded his last diamond but South was now in full control. He led a low heart toward dummy and West could take his jack of trumps but that was all.

"fantastic results"

That's how Mark R. Owen, manager of Roy Baumann Music Studio in Arlington Heights, describes the effectiveness of advertising in The Herald. Reprinted below is Mr Owen's letter.

For quite some time you have been calling on me and I have enjoyed being a regular retailer advertiser with you. I have always enjoyed creating my own ads, but I am most appreciative for your help and the assistance offered by your promotion department in laying out good ads that truly attract piano and organ customers.

Recently we ran our open house anniversary sale and I felt that I wanted to drop you a line to tell you the fantastic results we had. Our month of March this year was exceptional and we believe that advertising was much to its credit.

Does "Good Advertising" pay? Absolutely! Thank you much.

Sincerely,

Busing issue needs serious attention

State Schools Supt. Joseph Cronin has proposed a voluntary city-suburban busing plan that could have a significant impact on Northwest suburban schools caught up in declining enrollment and emptying classrooms.

The proposal, which was introduced initially to North and Northwest suburban administrators last December, made headlines last week and is expected to be discussed Wednesday at a metropolitan education conference at Northwestern University.

Cronin sent shock waves through the area last week when he pinpointed Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect as two likely areas to receive bused students. School districts within both towns have closed schools and faced financial problems because of enrollment declines.

The plan is simple in theory but complex in practice and would take a great deal of cooperation from suburban, Chicago and state school officials.

Cronin explains that while schools are being closed in suburban areas of Cook County, thousands of inner city Chicago youngsters are attending mobile classrooms and overcrowded schools. At the same time, busing city students into Cook County suburbs would help desegregate metropolitan area schools. The Chicago public schools recently were placed on probation by the Illinois Board of Education for failure to submit an acceptable desegregation plan.

Cronin brings the idea of the city-suburban program from Massachusetts, where he was the secretary of education. A similar plan, called the metro-suburban program, has operated successfully in the Boston area since 1967.

Thirty suburbs participate in the Boston program and when Cronin left Massachusetts a year ago, 3,000 children were involved.

The program began with about 300 students being bused from the city into suburban districts that volunteered to receive them. Several private foundations and the state government helped absorb some initial costs in setting up the program.

There are coordinators in each district who planned special programs for students and parents. Meetings were set up between the city and suburban parents involved to discuss the program. Suburban parents signed up as host families so if a city child had an accident or became ill he would have a place to go until arrangements could be made to take him home.

As the program grew, cross busing began, and white suburban students signed up to be bused to the city. A year ago there was a waiting list of black youngsters wanting to participate and a list of suburban schools wanting to take part.

It worked because it was a voluntary program and because people were informed of what was happening, Cronin said.

Similar programs are operating elsewhere in the country and it is likely that if suburban and city school officials are enthusiastic about the idea this area will be involved in the near future.

We were surprised and appalled to find that the majority of Northwest suburban school superintendents knew little or nothing about the busing plan or the Wednesday conference when contacted last week.

Only one superintendent will be at the conference, and apparently other districts are not even sending representatives.

The plan — and the other metropolitan school problems that are expected to be discussed Wednesday — deserve serious study by officials from this area. If the busing or other programs begin to take form, our representatives should be there from the beginning, listening, learning and bringing solid information back to the community so intelligent decisions can be made.

Today is Tuesday, May 18, the 139th day of 1976 with 227 to follow.

The moon is approaching its last quarter.

The morning stars are Venus and Jupiter.

The evening stars are Mercury, Mars and Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Taurus.

American missionary Sheldon Jackson was born May 18, 1834.

On this day in history:

• In 1860, Abraham Lincoln was nominated for president by the Republican party at its Chicago convention.

• In 1941, the first nationwide "I Am An American Day" was held, honoring 300,000 aliens, who had become U.S. citizens the past year.

• In 1961, Apollo 10, with three American astronauts aboard, blasted off for the moon in rehearsal for a lunar landing.

• In 1975, the Pentagon said five U.S. servicemen were killed in the rescue of the cargo ship Mayaguez from the Cambodians, that 70 to 80 were wounded in the action in the Gulf of Siam, and 16 men were missing.

Story cut because of space

The May 5, 1976, issues of the Arlington Heights, Des Plaines, and Elk Grove Herald carried my reply to the bizarre, malicious innuendos and misstatements made by Mr. Paul Kucharski. My response was omitted from the Mount Prospect issue of The Herald. For example, you published Mr. Kucharski's accusations concerning the tape but cut the article off right at my response. In your May 6 editorial you repeated the charges of the "deal" but, again omitted my response to the charges.

Am I to assume that Paddock omitted my responses in my neighborhood newspaper because of my position on the unit district? — hope not. In fairness, I think that you should print the omitted portion at least in the Mount Prospect edition of The Herald.

Emil Bahnmaier
Mount Prospect

(Editor's note: Because of space problems, the Dist. 59 story was trimmed in the Mount Prospect Herald. Kucharski had charged that Bahnmaier had refused to permit others to listen to tapes of unit district study committee meetings. In the portion trimmed from the story, Bahnmaier said the charges were "unfounded. I did not consider the tapes as part of the official record. The official record was the minutes.")

Queries Dist. 59 articulation

Having been a member of the Dist. 59 Unit District Study Committee, there seems to be some need to clarify an incorrect assumption by Mr. William S. Murphy Jr. in his letter to The Herald.

I am more than a little amazed how Mr. Murphy could have sat in the same meetings with me, heard my questions and comments and assumed that "Those who were critical of the financial statements seemed satisfied after discussions were concluded, or at least appeared to be until the meeting of May 3, 1976."

I was continually troubled by the approach taken in presenting all materials to committee members. My questions and challenges were continually directed at getting a fuller and more complete analysis. Specifically, I pointed out inaccuracies and omissions as I became aware of them.

On the matter of financial analysis: Once assumptions and exclusions have been stated, financial charts can be constructed that reflect that one specific stated approach. If consideration was to have been given to the total situation, then a full and complete evaluation calls for charts to be submitted reflecting other factors. The committee members could then compare and question.

The financial charts submitted to committee members presented a selected single view with pre-stated assumptions that were assumed to be constant over a five-year period. For example, Chart F5 projected over a $19 million dollar deficit for five years in Dist. 59 while Chart F8 projected over a $48 million dollar deficit in Dist. 214. It does not seem an unreasonable expectation that committee members should have been given charts based on more than one single set of assumptions.

On the matter of educational consideration: The attention of committee members was directed to the opportunity for better articulation that the unit district would provide. In the previous Unit District Study Committee Report on Page 48, the 1971 Cook County Visitation Report on Dist. 59 stated "There should be more articulation between the elementary and the junior high schools."

When the current members of this study committee received materials for consideration concerning educational programs, on Page 23 it stated "While vertical and interdisciplinary articulation in Dist. 59 have improved in recent years, continued efforts should be made to further strengthen continuity of the educational program."

No mention was made in the current educational material of the report submitted to the Dist. 59 School Board on Feb. 2, 1976, by the sixth grade study committee, On Page 17, "It became obvious to the committee, after meeting with the junior high and elementary principals, that the two groups seem widely divergent in approach to the sixth grade and junior high schools, the committee was surprised at the degree of separation that was noted. It is the committee's view that the interest of the student demands a massive effort to improve communication and coordination should begin as soon as possible."

I certainly believe this timely report should have at least been referred to in the educational report, and I question the conclusion stated in the report that articulation in Dist. 59 has improved in recent years in light of the conclusions of the sixth grade study report.

If there was a true intent to explore all available information, this should have been clearly evident in the materials presented committee members. I do not believe this was demonstrated to committee members.

Respect of life starts early

After reading both letters on abortion in your May 13 edition, I was encouraged to write.

The first 10 amendments of the Constitution, known as the Bill of Rights, were meant to include everyone's rights.

Abortion is the killing of a very small person who needs our protection.

Yes, having a child does not involve only the birth process, but conceiving a child brings responsibility also.

We must teach our children responsibility, respect and self-discipline. This education is an on-going process and it starts in infancy.

Worthy of note...

I am a registered nurse and a full-time housewife residing in Buffalo Grove.

I would like to commend the Long Grove Paramedics on their abilities and their immediate response to my call to them on Mothers' Day.

My 3-year-old daughter fell at home and lacerated her head resulting in profuse bleeding. They applied pressure with sterile dressings, checked her vital signs and were very kind to her. She was transported to Northwest Community Hospital. She required stitches and now she is fine.

Thanks again to these wonderful men.

Words of praise...

On behalf of the St. James Catholic Women's Club, Arlington Heights, I would like to thank Marianne Scott and The Herald staff for the excellent publicity coverage that has been extended to us throughout this past year. I found the workshop you offered last summer very essential and helpful in developing our publicity. As Publicity Chairman, it has been a most interesting and educational year to have worked with The Herald.

Thanks, Mike Klein, for the interesting and informative article on the metric system. You already may know that Illinois has issued guidelines to all state schools making the teaching of metrics mandatory at grades kindergarten-12 beginning with 1976-77 school year. There will be many activities in our schools, and a corresponding effort to increase community awareness. Any further help you can give us in this regard will be appreciated.

Potential for accident exists

Chemicals often found on trains

way alerted.

"There is no notification of the towns. That would be impossible to do. There is literally no way we could call all those towns," the railroad spokesman said.

A spokesman for the Milwaukee Road said train crews have "spill contingency plans" that outline what immediate steps should or should not be taken and whom to contact for more expertise.

"We try to get the quickest expert advice available," the Milwaukee spokesman said.

Only specific Soo Lines are allowed to carry potentially hazardous chemicals. Freight waybills detailing the freight load contain basic information for dealing with an accident involving them, a Soo Line spokesman said, including telephone numbers for emergency information.

COMMUNITIES along the line are aware of the potential for disaster and in varying degrees, have prepared themselves to cope with an accident.

Arlington Heights' plans focus on cordoning off the affected area and evacuating residents.

Police and fire personnel, including auxiliary forces and civil defense units would be augmented by county and state authorities in securing the area and combating the chemical leak, Charlton said.

Mount Prospect's plans, first formulated in 1963, are very similar to Arlington Heights', Fire Chief Pairitz said.

"THE MOST important thing to consider is flexibility. No two disasters are the same," Pairitz said.

Schaumburg, too, stresses flexibility in coping with a disaster. Fire Chief Lloyd Abrahmsen said the mobilization of emergency forces will enable the village to cope with the disasters.

Palatine Village Mgr. Anton Harwig said the establishment of a safe area with evacuation of residents so firemen can deal with the problem is the first step in meeting the emergency.

While the Wheeling police have no formal disaster plan, Police Lt. Ted Bracke said "Common sense procedures" including the standard steps of evacuation and securing the immediate area would be in effect.

IN DES PLAINES, firemen have undergone at least 25 hours of special training recently to deal with situations such as the Glen Ellyn derailment, said Deputy Chief David Clark.

Rolling Meadows has no disaster plan and Roger Huggs, city fire prevention officer said, "It has to happen once before you come up with a plan."

Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, has an emergency plan that covers such possibilities as well as tornados and air disasters.

Arlington Heights Village Pres. James T. Ryan said the potential for a chemical disaster has been a continuing concern.

"WE ARE VITALLY concerned about this. We've got to take a look at it to see whether or not present (state) regulations are sufficient," Ryan said.

"The public has to be protected 100 per cent. We cannot play the odds on this."

Ryan called upon area officials to become "vigorously involved" in lessening the odds of another Glen Ellyn accident.

Suburb GOP loses fight to block architect pact

by WANDALYN RICE

Suburban Republican Cook County Commissioners Monday lost a fight with County Board Pres. George W. Dunne over the selection of an architect for the $25 million renovation of Oak Forest Hospital.

The county board voted 12-3 to approve the appointment of the architectural firm of Ralph H. Burke Inc. to design and supervise the renovation, which is being required by the federal government.

Three of the board's six Republican commissioners, Ronald Larsen, Carl Hansen and Mary McDonald voted against the contract.

Comr. Harold Tyrrell said he objected to the way the firm was selected, but voted in favor of the contract because "this vote was to approve their fee, which is acceptable." Republicans Joseph Tecson and Joseph Woods also voted to hire the firm.

FOLLOWING THE VOTE Larsen charged that Burke "seems to be a favorite" of Democratic county officials.

Harry Kocas, executive vice president for Burke, said the firm has done hospital work for Little Company of Mary Hospital in Chicago and for hospitals in Dayton, Ohio, and in New Jersey.

He also said the firm in 1946 did the planning and land purchase for O'Hare Airport and worked for the county planning parking garages and the rapid transit lines on the Kennedy Expressway.

Burke's fee will be 8½ per cent of the renovation contract, an amount estimated by county officials to be about $2 million.

Larsen, Hansen and Tyrrell said they believed the county board should have had the opportunity to interview architects competing for the Oak Forest job, instead of having Dunne select the firm and ask for board approval.

TYRRELL SAID interviews by governmental boards of architects are "standard practice," particularly among school boards and village boards.

Dunne said, "I don't know of any governmental agency where any committee or board interviews for professional services such as architects." He said his selection of Burke "is predicated on my knowledge of their experience and competency."

Following the vote, Dunne cited to reporters the U.S. Supreme Court's decision that leaders of Congress could not appoint members of the Federal Election Commission. He said his power as head of the county board means he, and not the "legislative" county board members, has the power to make appointments, just as the president, not Congress, appoints members of the election commission.

During the board debate on the issue, Democratic commissioners successfully closed discussion under board rules which cut off debate with a simple majority vote. Following that vote, Republican Comr. Joseph Tecson objected to the board rule because "it is an extraordinary device that allows a simple majority to cut off the others."

Robert's Rules of Order call for a two-third's vote to cut off debate.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Word triglyceride a synonym for fat

I have always thought that triglycerides came from animal fat. In one of your columns you said it was also in most vegetable fats. This has only confused me and maybe others too. Would you please explain what you mean about vegetable fats? Which vegetables is it from? I stay strictly on a no animal fat diet, but, for some reason, my triglyceride count is still at 180, which I was told by the doctor was high.

There appears to be a large amount of public confusion about fats. Some of this may be a misunderstanding of the reason for emphasizing limiting animal fats. The term triglycerides simply means three fatty acids attached to glycerine. That's why the prefix tri is used, meaning three. These fatty acids may be saturated fats or unsaturated fats. The unsaturated fats may be either monounsaturated fats or polyunsaturated fats.

Most of the fats found in their natural state either in plants or animals have components of saturated and unsaturated fat. Just to use an example, a little less than half of the fat from beef is saturated fat. Most of the rest of it is monounsaturated fat. It contains very little polyunsaturated fat. Do not fall into the trap of thinking that animal fat is all saturated fat or thinking that fat from plant sources is all unsaturated fat. That is not the truth.

You can move on to a food like the avocado which is a high fat food, but all of the fats in the avocado are triglycerides. They're a combination of the different fats, saturated fat, monounsaturated fat and polyunsaturated fat. Chicken fat is also composed of triglycerides, but it contains less saturated fat and more polyunsaturated fat than beef fat. The fats found in fish are also triglycerides, but about one-third of the fatty acids in these triglycerides are polyunsaturated fat.

SO, NOBODY is really concerned about whether you find triglycerides in different fats or not because almost all of the fats in foods are triglycerides. Almost all the fats stored on or in your body are triglycerides. The important point is what kind of fat is it, saturated fat, monounsaturated fat or polyunsaturated fat? The general belief of most of the scientists interested in using diet to prevent heart disease is that you should limit your total fat intake. That means limiting your total triglyceride intake from all sources, including animal and plant. Beyond that it is particularly important to limit your saturated fat intake. Since a higher percentage of saturated fat is found in meat, this suggests some limitation on the amount of fatty meat that you would consume.

Finally, there are exceptions. Coconut oil, for example, is more than 80 per cent saturated fat. Learn to think of the word triglyceride as meaning fat. It is a scientific synonym for fats. ### No recipe's fail-safe but this one is good

Dear Dorothy: When we go out we often order short ribs and love 'em, but I've never made them myself. I've seen some on sale and am tempted. Can you recommend a fail-safe recipe? —Fay Pierce

No recipe is fail-safe, Fay, but here's one that's simple and good. Buy well-marbled short ribs. It's important if you want them to taste good. Brown them under the broiler. This melts off much of the fat (the good taste remains). Pour off the fat and then put the ribs in a heavy casserole in a 200-degree oven, adding a bay leaf, a tablespoon of horseradish, sprinklings of ginger, salt, pepper and any other meat seasonings you like, along with a medium-sized, sliced onion. Add a half-cup of water. Cook for 6 to 8 hours, basting occasionally, correcting the seasoning when done, if it's necessary. There will be plenty of delicious gravy. The thought tempts me, too.

Dear Dorothy: This hint may help the reader who had a soiled collar on a non-washable polyester coat. I was told to use cornmeal — either white or yellow — for such stains many years ago. I used yellow cornmeal on the collar of a light-colored wool coat and it did wonders. I don't know why it works. —Mrs. John A. Holman

Glad you brought this up. Cornmeal is often recommended to clean children's soiled plush animals. If it works, you're ahead — and no harm done if it doesn't.

Dear Dorothy: Used the "old white sheet trick" — cut an eight-foot sheet in half lengthwise, starched each half, and sewed in 10 one-inch pleats, leaving seven inches between them. Makes a fresh spring dust-ruffle underneath an Indian print too short for the bed. —Nancy Past

Arlington collects another tennis title

by CHARLIE DICKINSON
Tennis Editor

If the Mid-Suburban League conference tennis meet is becoming old hat for the Arlington Cardinals they didn't show it Monday as they swept to their 11th straight league championship.

"The kids just played super tennis," said Arlington coach Tom Pitchford, who has been tinkering with the controls behind every one of those titles. "It's good for the kids that they could all win."

There wasn't a loser in the Arlington bunch at Wheeling as they took every individual championship in sight for the second year in a row.

There was little doubt, after Friday's opening rounds, that the Birds were destined to remain where they have been for the last decade.

Prospect, which finished second, and Forest View also put their entire teams in the semi-finals but they squared off in a "dual meet" in Monday's first round.

Forest View won that dual 4-1 as only Prospect's top seeded No. 2 doubles team of Dave Tambeaux and Mike Wood advanced to the finals.

Forest View's Dave O'Donnell, who had been beaten by Arlington's Paul Wei in the No. 1 singles championship last year, earned another shot at the Cardinal junior as he dispatched Prospect's Dan Hanson 6-1, 6-2 in the semi-final round.

Wei earned a shot at defending his title as he whipped Palatine's Mike Esenberg 6-1, 6-3.

Wei is the best tennis player in the MSL and he wasted little time in winning the No. 1 singles title again.

He merely kept hitting his shots just out of O'Donnell's reach, never bothered by the wind that ripped Wheeling's courts all afternoon, for a 6-4, 6-1 victory.

John Wallner got his closest test in the semi-final round of No. 2 singles and even that wasn't very tense.

Fremd's Mike Mitsch won six games off the Arlington senior while falling 6-4, 6-2 and helped the Vikings to a sixth place finish in the league.

After that match it was back down to business for Wallner as he ripped Forest View's Steve Calderone 6-2, 6-0 for the No. 2 championship.

Calderone had moved into the finals with a 4-6, 6-1, 5-0 (def.) win over Prospect's Dave Hughson.

Arlington's tennis future seems assured as only Wallner and No. 3 singles champion Pete Burkhardt will be graduating from the team.

Burkhardt closed down his conference career with a 6-4, 6-2 victory over Forest View's Tom Kododek.

Kodadek blitzed Prospect's Steve Chelberg 6-2, 6-0 in the semi-finals while Burkhardt cleaned up on Palatine's Phil Groesbeck 6-3, 6-2 to reach the finals.

Arlington's No. 1 doubles team of Todd Van Gorp and Mike Doering had something to prove as they cruised to the conference championship.

A black mark on their record going into the meet was a loss to Hersey's Bill Rymysa and Kip Hahn in a dual meet, one of only three points the Cardinals lost all year.

Van Gorp and Doering made amends in the semi-finals with a 6-3, 6-1 victory.

Forest View's Nick Kekos and Doug Majewski reached the championship round with a 2-6, 6-2, 6-3 win over Jim Bryja and Paul Mallon of Prospect and then fell 6-3, 6-2 to the Arlington pair.

Bryja and Maloon had also beaten Van Gorp and Doering during the regular season.

Blair Johnson and Bob Pionke picked up Arlington's fifth individual title as they leveled Prospect's Tambeaux and Wood 6-2, 6-4.

Prospect's tandem, unbeaten in the regular season, beat Forest View's George Defotis and Dave Leahy 6-1, 6-3 in the semi-finals.

Rolling Meadows' only entry in the final rounds, Jeff and Rod Jay, saw their chances for an upset disappear when Johnson and Pionke took a 6-4, 6-2 decision.

Wheeling, Palatine fall in tournament

A Herald Staff Report

Pitching dominated a cold and windy afternoon that saw two area teams dropped from regional competition Monday. At North Chicago, Wheeling dropped a 2-1 heartbreaker in 14 innings to Libertyville and at Lake Park it was Glenbard West blanking Palatine, 4-0.

Two remaining Mid-Suburban League regional contenders — Rolling Meadows and Hersey — will square off today at 4 p.m. on the Maine South diamond.

WILD PITCH TRIPS WHEELING

Keith Pecka's brilliant pitching performance went down the drain at North Chicago when Libertyville tallied for the second time in 14 innings without benefit of a hit to eliminate Wheeling from regional playoff action, 2-1.

Pecka allowed only two hits through 10 full innings of mound work with one of them breaking up a no-hit bid with two away in the bottom of the seventh.

Libertyville scored their second run shortly before the game was to be suspended because of darkness on a pair of wild heaves.

There were two outs at the time the winning run raced across the plate. Wheeling relief hurler Glenn Barry, after pitching his way out of jams in the 11th and 12th frames, had retired six straight batters when he walked Bob Erickson with one out in the 14th.

Erickson was forced at second for out No. 2 but Jim Banning was safe on the fielder's choice. He then stole second and Jon Erickson was awarded an intentional pass. After a wild pitch, another free walk was doled out, loading the bases and then the second bad heave brought Banning across with a game winner.

Libertyville managed only four hits all day. Their first score came in the fourth on an error, a stolen base, a ground out and a bad toss to third following the putout.

Wheeling meanwhile banged out eight hits but they were guilty of some loose base running on a couple of early occasions and victimized later on by a surprise double play.

Wheeling's first golden scoring opportunity off Libertyville starter Brian Schwerman came in the fourth when consecutive runners reached on an error, a walk and an infield hit. Two of those runners were caught off second base, however, erasing the threat.

In the sixth, Rick Heredia reached on a miscue and stole second. He advanced to third on John Miller's ground out and zipped home when Bob Terreberry slashed a single through the box.

Terreberry subsequently stole second and third and Bucky Black then walked. But Terreberry was caught off third while Black was stealing second.

In the top of the 14th, Rick Reese reached on an error leading off and Bill Knuth singled. Both runners advanced on the throw in. The runners held on one bunt ground out and the next bunt attempt was lined to the first baseman, who tossed to third for a double play.

GLENBARD BLANKS PIRATES

Fine defensive play by Glenbard West and the four-hit pitching of Hlltopper Jeff Tarter were the key elements as Palatine dropped a 4-0 decision in the opener of the Lake Park Regional Baseball Tournament.

The loss eliminated Coach Al Berman's Pirates from the IHSA baseball picture after they had reached the regionals for the second straight year.

Tarter, a hard-throwing right-hander, struck out just three Palatine batters in going the full seven innings. But his Glenbard teammates, particularly the infielders, gave him excellent support. Tarter himself threw out four Pirates.

Losing pitcher Mark Menke allowed just seven hits and actually deserved a far better fate. He matched zeroes with Tarter through the first three frames, but then in the fourth a Palatine error led to Glenbard's first run.

The inning opened with Tarter slashing a single to center. Menke fanned cleanup hitter Marty Detmer and got the next hitter, Ted Glotzbach, to bounce into a force play at second, Bill Mottashed to Bill Odell.

Keith Pecka

But with two out, Steve Tourek lined a hit into right field and Glotzbach rounded second and headed for third. Strong-armed Pirate right-fielder Jeff Williams cut loose with a throw that was on line but over the head of third baseman Bruce Peterson for an error as the go-ahead run was waved home.

The Pirates had an excellent chance to get back into the game in the bottom of the fourth when they put runners on second and third with just one gone. Williams stroked the first of his two singles and Bill Meagher reached safely when his bunt was mishandled. Both Pirates moved up on Peterson's sacrifice.

Then, with the Hilltopper infield pulled in for a play at the plate, Mottashed rapped a hard grounder to second baseman Mark Elijah, who trapped Meagher between second and third, tagged him out, and fired home to get Williams sliding in for the double play.

Tarter led off the sixth with a double to start a two-run uprising against Menke, featuring another Palatine error. And the Toppers scored another unearned run in the seventh.

Cubs trade Thornton, land two from Expos

The Chicago Cubs, in urgent need of pitching, announced Monday they have traded first baseman Andy Thornton for Montreal hurler Steve Renko and the Expos' leading hitter, Larry Biittner.

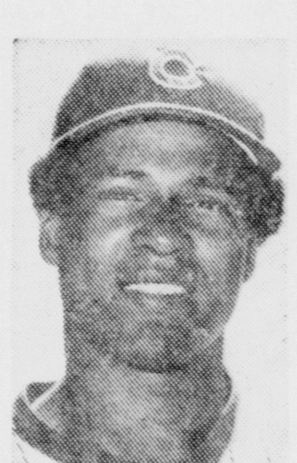

The Cubs said Renko, 31, had a 66-82 record with Montreal over seven years and a career 3.90 earned run average. He has an 0-1 record this season.

His best season was in 1973 when he had a 15-11 mark and a 2.81 ERA.

Renko was traded to Montreal in 1969 from the New York Mets.

Biittner, a lefthanded first baseman and outfielder, batted .315 for the Expos last year, striking out only 33 times in 121 games. He has played six years in the majors, two with Washington, two with Texas and two with Montreal.

The Cubs said both Renko and

Andy Thornton

Biittner will join the team in time for Tuesday's game against the Expos at Jarry Park.

Thornton has been with the Cubs three years and has an average of 2.75. The Cubs said they haven't decided yet who else to take off their roster to get it back down to the 25-man limit with the addition of Renko and Biittner.

Angels bedevil Sox, 10-5

Bill Melton, returning to Comiskey Park for the first time since being traded last winter, drove in three runs with two singles and a triple Monday night to lead the California Angels to a 10-5 rout of the Chicago White Sox behind the seven-hit pitching of Frank Tanana.

Melton singled home a run during a three-run first inning, tripled in another run in the third and singled home a run in the sixth as the White Sox tagged Jesse Jefferson with a loss in his first start of the year.

The Angels took advantage of Jefferson's wildness to build a 6-0 lead after three innings. Jefferson gave up eight walks, five hits and seven earned runs before being relieved in the fifth inning and four of the men he walked eventually scored. He also hit one batter who scored and made three wild pitches, one of them accounting for a run.

Reliever Jim Otten, in his first full inning, gave up five singles and three runs in the sixth as the Angels padded their lead to 10-0. Bobby Bonds, Joe Lahoud, Bruce Bochte, Melton and Dave Chalk all got singles in the inning.

Tanana worked his fifth complete game and got his third straight victory to make his season record 4-3. He had a shutout until the eighth when Chet Lemon hit his first major league home run with Bill Stein on base on an error.

The victory by California was only the Angels' 13th in 35 games while the White Sox suffered their 16th defeat in 25 contests.

Although the Angels own a better win percentage (.371) than the White Sox (.360), California is more games behind front-running Texas.

Hawks post only victory in softball regional tests

Hoffman Estates was the only area team to survive the first round of the state regional tournament, winning 14-10 over hosting Elgin Larkin Monday.

Falling by the wayside were Forest View, which lost a heartbreaker to hosting Barrington, 5-4; and Wheeling, a 30-8 loser to Glenbrook North.

AT ELGIN LARKIN

Hoffman scored early, taking a 9-2 lead going into the fourth for starting and winning pitcher Carol Willuweit.

Then Larkin rallied for four, narrowing the margin. That was catcher Clare Dowling's cue to deliver the biggest blow of the game — a three-run homer in the bottom of the fourth. The Hawks cruised home after that.

Dowling also doubled. Hilary Dyer contributed three hits. Larkin also contributed 10 errors.

The Hawks of Coach Donna Korda will play for the regional title Thursday at Elgin.

SCORE BY INNINGS

AT BARRINGTON

"We got robbed," said Al Beard, Forest View's coach. But he meant "robbed" fairly. According to his statistics, Barrington came up with seven outstanding plays to beat Forest View.

Forest View took a 1-0 lead into the bottom of the third when Barrington hit for four big runs. A dropped infield popup with the bases loaded tied the game with Terry Bagley's double driving home three more.

"They hit well off of us, which surprised me," said Barrington Coach Pam Devins. The Falcons had nine hits — more than any other team has had against the Broncos. Kim Smid led the Falcons with two singles and a double.

Nancy Lachus took the loss although all the Bronco runs were unearned. She allowed just four hits.

"It was a real pressure game out there," said Devins. "I think that's why we had so many errors."

AT WHEELING

Glenbrook North exploded for a pair of eight-run innings to rout hosting Wheeling, 30-8.

North's Laura Hoehle hammered out three of the winners' four homers, including a grand slam. Gina Neri suffered the pitching defeat.

Wheeling stayed in the ball game until the fatal fourth and fifth frames. Ann Kearns' 2-for-2 and Mary Meyer's 2-for-3 paced the Wildcats.

Indy racer Guthrie passes rookie test

Janet Guthrie Monday earned her chance to qualify for the Indianapolis 500-mile auto race, gaining approval of the U.S. Auto Club after completing her rookie driving test. Guthrie, who became the first woman ever approved for qualifying for the Memorial Day weekend classic, ran through the final 20 laps of her driving examination which had to be run at speeds above 165 miles per hour.

Her quickest lap in the final phase of the test was 171.429 miles per hour. After getting the 100-mile rookie test out of the way Monday, she returned to the race course to attempt to work her car to speeds necessary to make the field for the May 30 event.

That chance probably will come this weekend unless she experiences more of the same mechanical and weather problems which the testing before the first weekend of time trials. She passed the plagued her last week when she made several efforts to complete test just when she was beginning to wonder if her "own personal little black cloud" was hovering over the Indianapolis Speedway.

Griffin heads grid All-Star team

Coach Ara Parseghian has named a 54-man College All-Star football squad which has 10 players from the Big Ten led by Ohio State running back Archie Griffin.

The All-Stars will meet the world champion Pittsburgh Steelers in Soldier Field July 23 in the annual charity game. Twenty-six players on the college squad were first-round draft picks of National Football League teams.

Griffin, the two time Heisman trophy winner, will share running chores with Chuck Muncie of California, Joe Washington of Oklahoma and fullbacks Tony Galbreth of Missouri, Jim Jensen of Iowa and Mike Pruitt of Purdue. Quarterbacks picked by Parseghian were John Sciarra of UCLA, Mike Kruczek of Boston College and Richard Todd of Alabama.

Notre Dame leads in sending players to the midsummer classic and defensive lineman Steve Niehaus, at 280 pounds, will be the school's 151st representative. He will rejoin Parseghian who coached him at Notre Bend until the coach's college retirement a year ago.

SIU, ISU accept regional bids

Illinois State's Redbirds and Southern Illinois University's baseball Salukis Monday both accepted invitations to play in the Midwest Regional tournament May 28-29 against the Big 10 and Mid-American conference winners. The two clubs accepted at-large berths.

ISU, coached by Duffy Bass, has a record of 40-19 in its sixth year of major college competition and has won 20 of its last 22 games. Illinois State has played in post-season tournaments five years in a row in Division II from 1966-70, winning the national title in 1969, before they gained major college status.

Southern, 39-12-1 this season, has made nine regional appearances in the last 11 years and has been to the College World Series four times with two seconds and a third to its credit. Siu is ranked 16th in the nation and will face Illinois State in the tourney's opening game.

Track coach criticizes Olympics

Jim Bush, UCLA track coach, Monday chastised both the United States Olympic Committee and the NCAA for not assisting amateur athletes. "They (the United States Olympic Committee) have the money to help athletic programs," Bush told the Southern California Track Writers. "They should put Chevron track in some areas and lights for existing fields and pay coaches to help train athletes after they leave college.

"If we don't do something, we will take the worst licking ever in the 1980 Olympic games in Moscow." In reference to the NCAA's limitation of track scholarships to 14 while permitting 20 for hockey, Bush said, "The NCAA is one of the most powerful organizations in the country, but they make some of the most stupid rules."

Bush said that several foreign athletes are training at both UCLA and the University of Southern California for the 1976 Olympics at Montreal. "They are subsidized by their countries," Bush said. "They drive good cars. They live well here. But our athletes like Maxie Parks and Benny Brown, who have chances for medals in the 400 meters, and hurdler Clim Jackson, are unable to find part-time work to feed themselves and have time to prepare for the games."

Talented softball teams in regional showdowns

by PAUL LOGAN

Three more area teams swing into regional softball tourney action this afternoon.

Fremd and Hersey will battle at the Barrington District, beginning at 4:30. At the same time, Maine West and Niles West will matchup at Elk Grove.

The winners of these two games will meet the Monday winners for the regional titles on Thursday afternoon.

AT BARRINGTON

The Fremd Vikings won a tight ball game earlier this season from Hersey, 13-9, en route to their 7-1 record.

Barrington handed the Vikings their only defeat, 11-8. Fremd won the second half of the doubleheader, 7-6.

Pam Lechner, Fremd's steady pitcher, has a speedy fastball, "but I think her control is the key," said Carol Plodzien, the Vikings' coach. Lechner seldom walks a batter and averages about three strikeouts a game.

On the receiving end of her offerings is catcher Connie Bruns, who has thrown out many a base runner. Both were all-conference last year.

Cindy Nelson, the right fielder, leads the team with an over .400 average. She was 4-for-5 in the sub-regional title game. Heidi Giesler leads in runs batted in.

"Our defense is excellent. Our hitting has been going down slightly but seems to be coming back just in time for the regionals," said Plodzien.

"I think it's going to be really hard to come out of it (the regional)," said Nancy Sullivan, Hersey's coach. "But the girls are very capable of doing it, they really are."

Earlier in the year, the Huskies lost to Fremd after leading in the middle innings, 5-3. Sullivan said the biggest challenge in playing Fremd is keeping the Vikings off the basepaths.

"They're a running team," said the Hersey coach. "They bunt a lot."

Such teams force the opposition into mistakes. Errors have been a problem of late for Hersey. It helped open the doors for Fremd in the first game.

Since the Huskies are getting a second chance, Sullivan hopes they'll take advantage of this rematch.

Cathy Weadley is the team's leading hitter, slugging .633 in the MSL. Terry Clifone is hitting .599 with Kim Cashmore also over .500.

AT ELK GROVE

Maine West's Warriors will be carrying a big bat into their game with Central Suburban rival Niles West. It's their .421 team average.

A pitcher leads the sluggers — Nancy Habetler — with a .621 average. She's followed by Annette Arnold (.531), Carolyn Miller (.500), Cathy Huntoon (.478) and Debbie Carlstrom (.441).

Maine has a 7-1 record compared to Niles' 8-0. Habetler will take a 6-0 personal mark into the game, hopeful of outdueling Niles' talented hurler.

Habetler has allowed just 28 hits while striking out 40 and walking 35.

Patterson, DeWitt honored

The student newspaper at Harper College has selected Dave Patterson and Dianne DeWitt as winners of the Athlete of the Year Award for 1975-76.

Sports editor Jim Jenkins made the announcement in the paper's final edition.

Patterson, a standout with the football and basketball teams, also won the award last year and became only the second athlete to earn the honor twice.

DeWitt, who excelled on both the women's tennis and basketball teams, is the first woman to win the award.

Both athletes have earned scholarships to four-year colleges.

DeWitt will be attending Western Illinois University next fall on a physical education scholarship for her tennis ability.

Patterson, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Patterson of Park Ridge, has been granted a full ride at Northern

Dianne DeWitt

Dave Patterson

Illinois University for his talents at both baseball and football.

A graduate of Maine South High School, Patterson is winding up his final baseball season as the Hawks' top pitcher and first baseman.

Going into the recent sectional tournament he was hitting .417, had driven in 36 runs and established a new team record for home runs with six.

As a pitcher he had compiled a 5-2 record and struck out 67 batters in 63 innings.

He also played reserve quarterback and handled the kicking duties with the Harper football team.

Patterson broke his own record for punting average this fall with a 39.9

yards per boot mark. He also clicked on 15 of 17 extra point attempts and seven field goals.

His punting average placed him seventh among all the punters in the National Junior College Athletic Association.

He was also chosen to both the all-North Central Community College Conference and all-state teams as a kicker.

DeWitt, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Ericson of Arlington Heights, graduated from Arlington High School and as a sophomore at Harper paired with Arlington teammate Amy Redeen to fashion a 13-0 record in doubles competition in Juco play this year.

She will also be playing in the NJCAA finals which will be held in Houston this month.

DeWitt tried her hand at basketball and soon earned a starting job at forward and center where she was the

Warriors clinch share of 1st behind Earhart

Maine West clinched a tie for first place in the Central Suburban South baseball race Monday.

The hosting Warriors first won a continuation game from Glenbrook South, 13-2 in 10 innings. Earning the win was Rob Earhart, who struck out 14 and allowed just six hits. Matt Serna singled in the eventual winning run as the Warriors were the visitors in that game.

Rob Earhart

Earhart was equally impressive in the nightcap, striking out 13 in leading his team to a 10-1 decision. This time he allowed four hits over seven innings.

Dean Carpenter paced a 13-hit attack, going 4-for-4 and driving in four runs.

Cougars, Saxons, Falcons triumph

A Herald Staff Report

Pitching stole the show Monday afternoon in an abbreviated schedule of Mid-Suburban League baseball games.

Rob Totten of Conant and Bob Connell of Schaumburg gained victories for their mound efforts while a pair of Elk Grove hurlers combined to lose a one-hitter.

Pitching was not one of the bright spots as Forest View shaded Prospect, 8-7, in the other league game.

Here's the way the action developed as the Cougars, Saxons and Falcons picked up victories:

COUGARS EDGE HAWKS, 2-1

Conant's Rob Totten pitched seven solid innings, allowing just one unearned run and fanning seven, to lead the Cougars to a 2-1 win over Hoffman Estates Monday.

Ray Gawron was equally stingy on the mound for the Hawks. Although he was saddled with the loss he struck out eight and did not allow a walk.

The Hawks gave Gawron a 1-0 lead after two innings when Randy Brown reached on a two base error and was driven home by Wayne Jackson's single.

The Cougars trailed until the home half of the seventh inning when Jeff Johnson and Scott Schaefer opened the inning with singles.

On a wild pitch Johnson collided with the Hoffman third baseman and came home to tie the score.

Schaefer, who had gone to second on the wild pitch, then stole third and scored when the throw got away from the third baseman.

CONNELL OUTDUELS GRENS

Schaumburg righty Bob Connell hurled a four-hitter and fanned nine Elk Grove batters as the Saxons scored twice without a hit for a 2-1 victory Monday.

Connell pitched out of a precipitous jam in the seventh by striking out the last two Grenadier batters with the tying and winning runs in scoring position.

Schaumburg had scored an unearned run in the first inning off Elk Grove starter Tim Minnaugh on walks to Rick Baker and Terry Zarbock and an error on a double-steal attempt. The Saxons got another run without the aid of a hit in the third on walks to Steve Conrad and Scott Scholz, a double steal, and a ground out by Baker.

Minnaugh and Grenadier reliever Tom Curran combined to limit Schaumburg to just one hit through seven innings — a solid single by Zarbock leading off the fourth.

Elk Grove scored on a single by Jim Maier and a two-out double off the bat of Kevin McCloughan.

FALCONS WALK BY KNIGHTS

Prospect pitching yielded 10 free passes Monday and the Forest View Falcons took advantage of them for an 8-7 Mid-Suburban League victory.

Three of the walks came in the seventh inning when Prospect was trying to protect a 7-6 lead and they resulted, along with singles by Ron Turner and Bill Simon, in the winning runs.

Prospect took a 4-1 lead after the top half of the second as Mike Crnich, Burt Thomas and Dave Wille drove in runs with hits.

Davies also drove in a run with a single in the Knights' three-run seventh inning.

To do that I try to communicate through my pictures what is happening in the community. And if I do not communicate, then I have not only failed the community but I have compromised my career."

As a staff photographer for The Herald, Dom Najolia handles everything from spot news pictures to sports pictures and still finds time to talk to clubs such as the 4-H Association about how to take better pictures. Dom monitors police and fire calls not only on the job but in his free time, too.

Dom joined The Herald photography staff in 1969. In 1971, he took a three-month leave of absence to work as an intern for the National Geographic Society in Washington, D.C. Before joining The Herald, Dom worked for the Kansas City Star as a staff photographer.

A graduate of the University of Missouri, Dom received a bachelor's degree in journalism. Dom is a member of the National, Illinois and Chicago Press Photographers Associations.

In his spare time, Dom enjoys playing tennis, needlepointing and taking pictures.

We are proud of the many professionals like Dom Najolia who are working to make The Herald the only daily you need.

Hawks boost diamond mark to 23-10

Ernie Banks would have been proud.

The Harper Hawks got their fill of baseball Monday, taking two-thirds of a tripleheader with Thornton.

The marathon started at noon and the third game was called by darkness after five innings but by then Harper had squeaked 8-2 and 9-5 wins around a 4-3 loss.

Dave Patterson threw five innings of no-hit ball in the opener, retiring 16 in a row at one time, to lead the Hawks to that 8-2 win.

Patterson had the Thornton batters hitting the ball to his defense as he struck out only two and allowed just a single hit.

Patterson also kicked in three RBIs with his bat as he stroked a double and a single.

Gary Oslance contributed a double to Harper's 10-hit production and Tom Good and Marty Luquet drove in runs with singles.

The second game went to Thornton 4-3 in 10 innings and Patterson, who appeared twice in the game as a relief pitcher, was given the loss.

Steve Raccuglia trimmed Thornton's 2-0 lead in the second with a run scoring single and Dave Mnichowicz drove in the tying run in the third.

Luquet sacrificed the lead run home in the fourth but Thornton tied it in the bottom of the seventh and scored the winner in the tenth.

Harper and Thornton might have got a regulation seven inning game finished in the nightcap but the first two innings took more than an hour to complete.

By that time the Hawks had built a 5-3 lead.

Luquet, Patterson, Oslance and Howie Brauer had contributed singles in the first inning for four Harper runs.

Tom Good drove home another in the second with a double.

Good's double in the third pushed home two more runs and Steve Arneri scored another with a single.

Dar Townsend won the game in relief.
